Located in downtown Price, Utah - The Prehistoric Museum, USU Eastern offers the visitor extensive exhibits in paleontology, archaeology, and geology including a fluorescent mineral display and history of Utah’s geology.

See exhibits of real dinosaur bone, authentic tracks, Native American baskets, pottery, and more, often accompanied by cell phone tours. Our newer exhibits feature hands-on components, bi-lingual text, and, in some cases, Braille text.

Observation Labs are an area of the museum where visitors can witness the processes of fossil preparation and curation as well as speak with museum technicians in a one-on-one setting.

Paleontology

Home of the slashing fiend, Utahraptor, the museum hosts a number of other full body dinosaur mounts, such as Utah’s state vertebrate fossil and original museum mascot the Allosaurus as well as the largest mounted ankylosaur skeleton, Peloropilites.

Visitors love viewing real dinosaur bone throughout the Hall of Paleontology. Here, you can see how these giant jigsaw puzzles come together.

Archaeology

One of the premier attractions in the Hall of Archaeology, hailed as some of the most pristine and ornate examples of clay Fremont figurines, is the world-renowned Pilling Figurines. Profiled multiple times in National Geographic magazine, this set of clay figurines is a must-see exhibit.

The Hall of Archaeology also shows basketry, pottery, hunting implements, stone tools, and skeletons of several Ice Age mammals.
Children’s Discovery Area

For the little ones, there is a Discovery Area where the kids can play. This part of the museum offers a delightful dinosaur “dig”, child-sized pithouse, coloring pages, puppets, and other hands-on activities.

Art Gallery

The museum art gallery hosts several art exhibitions per year and will be a wonderful addition to your museum experience.
