‘Extraction’ Images at Gallery East

03/27/2019

Born and raised on the East Coast, Hikmet Sidney Loe fell in love with the arid desert lands of Utah and the environs of Great Salt Lake. She is an artist, writer and teacher whose work examines the changeable nature of the earth and addresses our perceptual and cultural constructs of the land.

Her first aerial photographs of Great Salt Lake date from 2005; since then she has traversed the lake to capture both micro and macro environments from each season.

“The cultural constructs that impact how we perceive landscapes hold deep fascination for me,” Loe said. “My initial misunderstanding and trepidation regarding the visual makeup of Great Salt Lake shifted as I developed a need to understand the ground around me. Through in-depth studies in art, science, and philosophy I gained a new way to view landscape with a continued focus on Utah’s inland sea.”

Loe explains, “Extraction holds multiple meaning. Each image is pulled from a specific area of the lake, yet is presented to the viewer without context to the broader environment. Most images show the impact of organic and mineral extraction that occurs across multiple industries around the lake. Each extraction calls into question preconceived ideas we may hold of the use and sustainability of this body of water.”

David Baddley and Frank McEntire are acknowledged for their assistance and encouragement of this exhibition, and Marilyn Bridges and David Maisel for their inspiration.

Located in the CIB, Gallery East is free and open to the public during the academic year from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed weekends and holidays. A reception and gallery talk will be held on March 22, 6-8 p.m.

Any questions, contact Noel Carmack, at 435-613-5241 or email noel.carmack@usu.edu.

Related Links:
Utah State University Eastern Art Department
Gallery East